

92

earplug

Artist: JDH and Dave P
Title: Go Commando
Label: Defend Music
Release: March 2007

A cursory listen to the latest Go Commando installment might suggest that the two men behind the decks — JDH and Dave P — forwent a timeless mix in favor of showcasing 2006's latest and greatest tracks. From Joakim's post-punk-tinged techno to the dark synth pop of the Knife to Supermayer's anthemic reworking of Gui Boratto's gem "Like You," the duo's mix plays like a yearbook signed by all the cool kids. But merely passing this comp off as a snapshot of '06 would dismiss JDH and Dave P's ability to deftly string together fun-filled, floor-filling tracks — a skill they've honed over the past two years helming New York's raucous, taste-making FIXED parties. And besides, JDH and Dave P ain't all about techno here and now: the mix is also peppered with classic cuts from Tronikhouse and Mr. Oizo, rockers courtesy of the Rapture and 120 Days, and enough acid to swell an ocean. (JJ)