LUCKY GIRL

Tina Dico

Los Angeles-based singer-songwriter Tina Dico loves soft little dresses, but you'll never see her looking too done up. "The key for me is to offset them with something casual, so it seems effortless," she says. Dico goes for simple knee-high boots and chunky cardigans, then piles on long, black bead necklaces—resulting in a kicked-back version of feminine chic.

Favorite accessories: Oversize leather shoulder bags and multibuckle belts. "I adore soft, slouchy leather. And I'm veering toward accessories in earthy colors like brown and green. They're just so smart."
Weekend uniform: Skinny black jeans from Blue Blood, which she wears with round-toe flats.

Beauty secret: Dico uses a hair mask (she loves Kérastase Oléo-Relax) instead of a regular daily conditioner. "It's richer, so it really moisturizes dry hair."

Shops at: Anthropologie for dresses, and the new-to-California Spanish chain MNG by Mango for striped sweaters.
